COUNCIL CHIEF LANDS IN ROW OVER AIRPORT

Lydd remarks lead to call for top Tory to quit

COUNTY Hall leader Paul Carter has come under fire for comments he made in support of the controversial expansion of Lydd airport.

While Kent County Council has said it has concerns about the environmental impact of the plan, Cllr Carter has been criticised for appearing to support the scheme.

The Lydd Airport Action Group, which opposes the development, is calling for Cllr Carter to be formally reprimanded for his "inappropriate" comments because of his political influence in the county.

But Cllr Carter's deputy says the leader was within his rights to comment on the proposals as the final decision over the expansion rests with Shepway council.

The complaint was made by the chairman of LAAG, Louise Barton, and followed comments the top Tory made at a public meeting at the airport, backing the plans.

If given the go-ahead, the expansion would see the runway extended to allow larger planes to use the airport. There would also be a new terminal to deal with the predicted massive increase in passengers.

It is understood that Cllr Carter said he thought the development of services at Lydd and at Manston airport in Thanet would result in job creation and economic regeneration in the county.

But in a letter to Peter Sass, chairman of the KCC Standards Board, Mrs Barton said: "Apart from compromise his own planning officers, Cllr Carter's comments could prejudice the voting attitudes of Shepway district councillors when the planning application is determined later in the year. "Cllr Carter openly supported the proposed development of Lydd airport despite KCC formally objecting to the planning application."

County planning officer Leigh Harrington submitted a holding objection to the proposals to Shepway council on November 30 last year.

The letter of complaint continues: "LAAG believes it is inappropriate for the leader of Kent County Council to express a view which runs contrary to the official policy decision made by Kent County Council."

"In the private sector this would be considered to be a serious matter and would be grounds for resignation."

Speaking after the meeting last month, Lydd airport managing director Zaher Deir said he welcomed the KCC leader's endorsement.

He said: "Our planning applications

VOTE FOR SIOBHAN

Clamour girl Siobhan Hustler is bidding to become Miss England 2008 - and she wants help from readers of Yourshepway.

The model and actress - who recently appeared in historical drama The Other Boleyn Girl - has entered the regional heat of the competition, which has a grand final in London.

To qualify she needs votes - and people can give her a helping hand by texting 'Siobhan Hustler' to the number 84205.

Siobhan, 20, said: "Last year, Folkestone was the only town of its size to have three girls in the final. The other two haven't entered this year, so it's up to me to fly the flag for Folkestone."

"Any help I get in the form of votes will be very much appreciated."

Siobhan also feels she can do well in the Grand Final - should she get there.

"Last year I did OK, but this year I feel I can do better," she said. "I'm not necessarily talking about winning it - just developing personally."

Residents' vote means council referendum

■ BY ROB LIVINGSTONE

FURIOUS Sandgate residents opposed to the decision to switch council status from a parish to town council are demanding a referendum.

Changing into a town council meant Sandgate could have a mayor for the first time, but councillors gained no additional powers. Sandgate is administratively a town, though it remains a village in reality.

But the move, which saw Conservative Cllr Geoffrey Boot become the first mayor of Sandgate, has triggered strong protests.

LibDem councillor Season Prater gained her seat at this month's elections to represent Sandgate Valley.

She stood on a platform opposing the change of status and is leading the call for a referendum, which will be decided on by Shepway council.

After a public meeting in which residents voted in favour of a referendum, Cllr Prater said: "The process for the council to become a parish council has to be formally put as a request for a referendum to Shepway District Council.

"It is sad that the mayor refused to allow this decision to go back to a vote of the council, but I am delighted that people power has forced a referendum. I will be campaigning for a change back to parish status."

Cllr Boot said: "When one makes changes and tries to move things forward, there is always opposition. It is a shame we are going to spend money on this, but that is what was decided."

Cllr Boot said another proposal suggested at the meeting, which would have looked at the change to the council's administration in a year, was ignored.

He said: "Rather than spend money on a referendum, we would have been prepared to review this in a year. We have only changed the administration of Sandgate - it remains a village."

The call for a referendum came amid controversy over the order of a vote at the meeting confirming Cllr Boot as mayor. Opponents claimed the voting process was flawed and contained procedural errors. Cllr Boot has defended the vote, saying it was "appalling" how some people had behaved at the meeting.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Poster competition needs creative kids

A DESIGN competition to produce a poster for Folkestone is being organised for the coming weekend.

On Saturday - and seven days later - sessions will be held at 45 Old High Street when youngsters up to the age of 14 can take part in creating a poster promoting the town.

Finished articles will be on display at Stop 24, the new motorway services off junction 11 of the M20.

The public will then be able to vote for their favourites.

Kite Kiosk provides real flight of fancy

THE sudden appearance of a white structure on The Leas at Folkestone has left locals scratching their heads.

But its name gives it away - the Kite Kiosk is a place where people can go to obtain kites to fly on top of the cliffs.

It is part of the upcoming Triennial and will be officially unveiled soon.

Resident Andy Bryant said: "Everyone thought it was going to be for ice cream or soft drinks. But kites?"

"Even when we saw the name on it we didn't think they'd be for sale or hire there."

Back to the garden

SPECTACULAR Sandling Park woodland garden, with its rhododendrons and azaleas, is now open between 10am and 5pm each Wednesday and Sunday.

It suffered badly in the 1987 hurricane but has been nurtured back to its earlier splendour.

Entrance is £4 for adults, with children and parking free. Dogs are not allowed.

Shame of nurse who stole from war veteran

A DISTRICT nurse stole from a 93-year-old war veteran for whom she was supposed to be caring.

Folkestone magistrates were told that 45-year-old Susan Durham was caught after Harry Parslow's son wrote down the serial numbers of the bank notes in his dad's wallet.

Durham, of Elverton Close, Folkestone, visited the one-legged former PoW twice a week, the court was told. Previously another carer had stolen from the ex-soldier. Mr Parslow junior became suspicious when £30 went missing from his father's wallet in March and police were called.

The £30 was found in Durham's purse, with another £200 under the front seat of her car.

Gemma Webb, prosecuting, said Durham told police the veteran had given her £10, although it is against the rules to take cash from patients.

She said: "Durham then admitted

she had stolen the money but couldn't explain why."

Rhys Davies, for Durham, said: "She is unable to find a reason for stealing the money. She has been a nurse for 21 years and has thrown her career away. This has terrified her. She feels a great sense of shame."

Durham was sentenced to two months in jail - suspended for a year - ordered to do 200 hours' unpaid work and told to pay £60 costs.

Ugly toes, Elvis hips and a night of TV fun

■ BY ROB LIVINGSTONE

MICHAEL Howard has revealed that he cries at romantic movies, can perform a mean Elvis impersonation and regards his wife as "the boss".

The MP for Folkestone and Hythe was displaying his softer side as he recorded an episode of All Star Mr and Mrs with his wife Sandra.

The couple, who have been married for 33 years, were replacing novelist and Tory peer Jeffery Archer and wife Mary, who had pulled out at the last minute.

The show, to be screened at 7pm on Saturday and presented by Philip Schofield and Fern Britton, sees Mrs Howard entering a sound-proofed booth while Mr Howard answers a series of personal questions for the chance to win at least £5,000 for charity.

Mr Howard declares that he holds his drink better than his wife, a former model and author, and they both agree that he is the better kisser.

He confesses to crying during the romantic comedy Sleepless In Seattle and manages to avoid performing an Elvis impersonation despite his wife claiming his gyrating hips were his "strong point".

They each declare that the other is the most honest. Mr Howard also admits that his wife has better manners, and the couple reveal they both think they have "the ugliest toes".

At one point, Fern Britton says to the former home secretary: "Ann Widdecombe famously said there's something of the night about you, but which of these is most likely to rouse you in the night?"

Given four options, Mr Howard plumps for "getting up because I need a wee" – which Mrs

FAMILY MATTERS: Michael and Sandra Howard will appear on All Star Mr and Mrs on Saturday

Howard confirms as true. In a pre-recorded clip of the Howards at home, Mr Howard says he feels his wife is part of him and declares: "I am one of the luckiest people in the world to find her." For her part, Mrs Howard says: "Michael's my whole world, really. He has always been there and is wonderful to me."

The Howards end up in second place, behind Sugababe Heidi Range and husband Dave Berry, an MTV presenter, who answer more questions correctly.

Laurence Llewellyn-Bowen and his wife Jackie also appear on the show, which is being broadcast on ITV 1 on Saturday.

Putting on a show to help save Ratty

FOLKESTONE and Dover Water Company is highlighting the plight of Britain's water voles.

The company is sponsoring a garden called Ratty's Refuge at this year's Chelsea Flower Show to illustrate how habitats can be created as a refuge for the creatures.

Water vole numbers dropped from seven million in 1990 to one million in 1998 and they are now protected by law.

David Walton, managing director of Folkestone and Dover Water, said: "We are looking not only to minimise environmental impacts but also, whenever possible, to enhance the environment. We are delighted to be able to sponsor the Chelsea display, which shows how easy it is to help wildlife in our own gardens."

Ratty's Refuge, designed by Ann Robinson and Angela Potter of English Eden, shows how anyone within a kilometre of a river can create an environment for water voles.

The garden, sponsored by the River and Rowing Museum as well as the water company, marks the 100th anniversary of the publication of Kenneth Grahame's The Wind In The Willows, where Ratty the water vole was created.

for an extension to the runway and a new passenger terminal building will create many jobs for local people and help regenerate the economy of south-east Kent, so we are hugely encouraged to hear the leader of the county council voicing his support for our plans."

Backing Cllr Carter, County Hall's deputy leader Alex King said: "KCC is only a consultee and will play no part in the decision about the planning application."

"It is the responsibility of the district council to take any decisions on local planning matters."

"Therefore, KCC members are free to give their views on the merits of any proposed developments."

"The standards committee will deal with this in line with its usual procedures. However, we are confident the leader has acted entirely properly in these circumstances and there is no question of him having acted inappropriately."

Cllr Robert Bliss, leader of Shepway council, rejected claims Cllr Carter's comments would affect the voting of Shepway councillors.

He said: "In no way will these comments prejudice our councillors. They are capable of making up their own minds and will do this when they meet to determine the applications and have considered the information presented to them."

Beleaguered village given some good news at last

THERE is a glimmer of light at the end of the tunnel for the beleaguered village of Sellindge, which has been threatened with a sewage recycling plant and the creation of a lorry park to end the M20 jams caused by Operation Stack.

Plans to refurbish Sellindge Sports and Social Centre using a £250,000 grant from the De Haan Charitable Trust have been welcomed by villagers.

At a public meeting, more than 50 residents watched a presentation by Cllr Jennifer Hollingsbee, the chairman of the club, which detailed the proposals.

Villagers were asked for a show of hands to canvass the level of support and no one was opposed. Cllr Hollingsbee said she was delighted that so many had turned up.

"I gave a presentation and we held a vote at the end of the meeting," she said. "It was unanimous that we should go for it."

"There were some reservations before the meeting. Some people thought the improvements would just be for youth groups, but I was able to reassure them that this would benefit the whole community."

The secretary of the centre, Christina Sandy, said the level of interest meant there was standing room only for Cllr Hollingsbee's presentation. She said: "It went really well. More people turned up than we had expected. Everyone was really keen and brought lots of ideas."

Ms Sandy said the centre would be starting a fund-raising committee to get money for other projects.

She said: "We will still need to raise £70,000 to refurbish the changing rooms and toilets and we will be approaching the county and district councils for help."

The improvements should be completed by mid-2009.

"We hope work will start in the autumn and be finished by next summer," Ms Sandy said.

A De Haan Charitable Trust spokesman said: "We are happy to help a local project which encourages sport and opportunities for young people and the wider community."

The grant from the foundation will be used to create a new building at the side of the centre. This would be a youth venue but could also be used for weddings and other events.

The playing fields would be renovated with improved drainage and there are also plans to expand and revamp the centre's kitchen, as well as refurbishing the bar. The centre now has to submit a business plan to the foundation.

Reliving the Great War at Dover Castle this weekend

RETURN OF BIG DADDY

PORT Lympne Wild Animal Park has welcomed home Kingo the rhino.

The male black rhino had been on loan to Paignton Zoo in Devon since 2003 as part of a breeding program to boost numbers of the endangered species.

While at the park Kingo, who was born Port Lympne in 1983, fathered four calves.

The head of the rhino section at Port Lympne, Paul Beer, said that he hoped that Kingo would continue to prove as virile on his return.

"We know that Kingo has a good rate in siring calves and we are hoping that he will continue to breed with one of our female cows," he said.

Two of his offspring, Limpopo and Laikipia, were returned to the Serengeti last year, the first black rhinos born in captivity to be reintroduced into the area.

Is this the end of M20 closures by trucks?

BY ROB LIVINGSTONE

WORK has started on installing a movable barrier on the M20 between Junctions 11 and 12 to reduce delays caused by Operation Stack.

The Highways Agency, the government body responsible for maintaining the UK's motorways, began installing the barrier on May 13.

The work is part of a plan to create a contraflow along the motorway to keep two lanes open when Stack is in place – avoiding the need to divert motorists onto the A20.

In recent months the Highways Agency has built a number of emergency gates into the central reservation to allow police to funnel off traffic from the M20 in the event of a serious crash.

Minister for roads, Tom Harris, said the barrier would play an important part in reducing

INSTALLATION: Heavy plant begins the work on the barrier

the effect of phase one of Stack.

He said: "I am very aware of the disruption that Operation Stack causes for people in Kent.

"Installing this new moveable barrier will help ease that disruption, while the Highways Agency continues to work with Kent County Council, the police and other partners to help find a longer term solution."

The work will last for at least 14 weeks and be carried out around the clock to prevent further delays; a 50 mph limit will be in force.

At least two lanes will remain open between 6am and 8pm each day, though officials have warned this may involve the use of the hard shoulder and the closure of entry and exit slip roads on certain dates.

A spokesman for the Highways Agency, Ing Fischer, said that as well as installing the barrier work would also be carried out to change the road layout.

"The movable barriers will offer real benefits while Operation Stack is in place, and the work we are doing on the road is essential for the solution to work smoothly," he said.

"The new system will allow a contraflow for phase one of Stack to be put in place quickly and enable the M20 to remain open to coast-bound traffic."

Ashford MP Damian Green said: "There will never be a good time to do something like this so it is better to just get on with it. The sooner it is in place, the sooner we can see if it works."

Fog crash driver died instantly

TWO traffic police officers called to a 170 vehicle pile-up in fog have told how they had never seen such carnage.

Derek Bostock died as his car was sandwiched between two trucks in the smash on June 30 last year on the A20 near Capel Le Ferne.

Experienced motorway officers Sgt Glyn Walker and PC Adam Maxfield were the first officers to reach the accident which stretched for more than half a mile.

They told the inquest in Ashford how vehicles continued to drive into the wreckage as visibility dropped to just six feet.

Mr Bostock, from Cheriton, died instantly when his VW Bora saloon smashed into the back of an articulated lorry and seconds later another truck ploughed into him.

Dover-bound Polish truck driver Volgdan Mariciniak was slowing down then he hit the emergency brake because he was in danger of crashing into cars.

He told the inquest that as he moved to the right he stopped because a man was standing directly in front of him. Then he said he felt a hit the back of his truck – then there was a louder crash.

Hungarian driver Gabor Frank said he was in a convoy of three lorries and saw two pull over. He spotted a fog warning sign but then the mist was swirling around him and a lorry and cars loomed up in front of him.

He too pulled to the right but couldn't avoid hitting the Bora.

PC Maxfield estimated Mr Frank's lorry was doing just 33 mph when it crashed into the VW Bora which was split in two.

The second lorry jack-knifed and reared up over the cab.

Recording a verdict of accidental death, coroner Rachel Redman said Mr Bostock would have died instantly when his spine snapped under the impact.

She said the driver contributed to his own death because, like many of the drivers involved in the smash, he failed to take into account the dreadful weather conditions.

Afterwards Sgt Walker said the crash was caused by a series of freak conditions – if any one of them had been different then Mr Bostock would still be alive.

He said: "I've never dealt with an accident on that scale in my career."

In all 13 motorists were prosecuted for dangerous driving in the aftermath of the crash including the Hungarian trucker.

Sgt Walker said: "None of the crashes on this stretch of road has been down to weather conditions apart from this one. Drivers were not driving to the conditions even though fog warnings were switched on."

A PROUD MOMENT

A SOLDIER from Folkestone has carried the FA cup at the final between Portsmouth and Cardiff.

Private Ryan Copping, 22, who was awarded the Military Cross for bravery, presented the cup to the Royal box after the match on Saturday.

He had been selected after being awarded the prestigious military medal by the Queen for bravery during his tour in Iraq with the 1st Battalion The Princess of Wales Royal Regiment, which saw the armoured vehicle he was driving come under fire from insurgents.

Speaking before the match, which saw Portsmouth win 1-0, Pte Copping said he was thrilled and honoured to have been chosen, but was feeling "slightly nervous" about appearing in front of thousands of people.

He said: "I think the whole experience will be just as daunting as meeting the Queen."

Drugs police catch four men on beach

POLICE have seized drugs worth £10 million after arresting four suspected smugglers on a beach near Folkestone.

Officers from the Metropolitan Police and the UK Border Agency made the arrests on Friday, after intercepting an inflatable boat believed to have come from France.

The four men have been charged with conspiracy to supply class A, class B and class C drugs, and will appear before magistrates on Monday. All four were remanded in custody. Eight holdalls were found by police in a nearby lock-up container after a search of the boat and the surrounding area.

An analysis of the 100kg of substances is expected to confirm that they were cocaine, amphetamine and cannabis, with an estimated street value of £3m to £10m.

Artists celebrate 80 years of exhibiting

MORE than two hundred people attended the opening of this year's Folkestone Arts Society exhibition at the Grand Hotel.

The society, founded by 30 art lovers in 1928, is celebrating its 80th anniversary.

Famous members have included Winston Churchill who was made an honorary member of the society in 1947 as part of his role as Lord High Warden of the Cinque Ports.

The exhibition was opened by Michael Howard, MP, a patron of the society.

Mr Howard said: "In an age where change is a buzzword, it is important that we don't lose sight of the importance of continuity."

"This society is a wonderful example of continuity; I doubt that the 30 or so enthusiasts who gathered in each other's homes 80 years ago quite imagined that today we would be gathered here to admire works of such tremendous quality."

Patsy Baker, chairman of the society, said: "It is a life time of involvement which can be seen here tonight"

The free exhibition is open until Tuesday.

Battle of Britain planes cause a stir at airport

THREE vintage aircraft stopped off at Lydd Airport to refuel on their way to a show on the continent.

The Spitfire, Hurricane and Dakota DC3 transport aircraft had flown down from their base at RAF Coningsby in Lincolnshire and were preparing to cross the Channel.

The planes are part of the Battle of Britain Memorial Flight which will be taking part in various events this summer to mark the 90th anniversary of the formation of the Royal Air Force.

A spokesman for the airport said: The plans created quite a stir with a number of spectators coming into the viewing area to take a look at them."

The pilots of the aircraft were also given a briefing on weather condition during the landing period.

New school can continue despite mistake in height

BUILDING work on Lympe Primary School can continue say Kent County Council despite the fact that the building is two and a half feet too high.

The school is being rebuilt after a fire wrecked the previous building two years ago.

A retrospective planning application was submitted after the roof was discovered to be too high and councillors approved it.

Mayor and mayoress vote is unanimous

ANOTHER TERM: Alan and Rosemary Ewart-James

MAYOR of Hythe Alan Ewart-James received a unanimous vote of confidence from town councillors and will continue in his role for the next 12 months.

His wife Rosemary will also continue as mayoress following the vote by 14 councillors who all backed the couple.

Members of the public watched from the gallery of the town hall as he accepted the title and thanked those present.

"It's a great honour to be mayor," said Cllr Ewart-James. "I want to assure everyone in the town that I take my responsibilities seriously and do my best for the people of Hythe."

He also praised members of the council – all of whom were at the meeting except Linda and John Oliver, who have moved to Bath.

QUESTION & ANSWER

DAMIAN COLLINS

Q & A

Damian Collins is to contest the Folkestone and Hythe seat for the Conservatives. He tells Nick Ames about the problems faced by the rural part of his constituency, which includes much of Romney Marsh.

Q There has been some recent criticism of the facilities available to the people who live on Romney Marsh, particularly the availability of services. How do you feel about this?

A Yes, well Romney Marsh is one of the worst affected areas in the country.

It's obviously a very rural area and people are spread out and wouldn't have the same sort of access to facilities as you have in a town like Folkestone.

But even the services that are there have been greatly diminished over the years.

We've all seen evidence of this – the closure of post offices which can really affect a rural community.

Also the loss of various shops, particularly the more traditional ones such as the butcher and baker which we see disappearing.

Q Which other facilities are you concerned about?

A In some parts of the area we see local pubs going. Businesses are closing in front of people and they feel there is nothing they can do about it.

Q What do you feel this all means to the people who live in the area?

A It means local businesses are being taken out of the community altogether and they provide an important community service. They are where people come together and meet and the money they raise for the local economy is important too.

They sell things to people but also buy things from local people.

Services are integral to the quality of people's lives wherever they live and everybody wants someone they can trust.

Say it's a local GP – people want to talk to someone who they feel comfortable with, maybe someone who knows their medical history.

They don't just want to be referred to the first person who happens to be available.

Some of these communities really feel they have had the heart ripped out of them.

You see some of the villages on the Marsh and there are no shops, no pub, no post office. Everything is three or four miles away.

This makes it impossible for people to just go to the corner shop and buy a pint of milk for instance.

Instead, they have to travel some distance and will probably end up buying it from a supermarket.

Q And in some ways there is a knock-on effect as one business shuts its doors so another loses business.

A Yes, that seems to be the case. If one closes others go.

In my village the butcher closed recently which will affect the local abattoir it purchased from and the farmers who supplied that business.

Q Do you feel that people will stop living in such areas and move away altogether?

A People will still live in these communities but the community itself doesn't feel as familiar with itself as it used to.

Q What do you think can be done to help such communities?

A We really need to look at how we can bring life back to our high streets and communities in areas such as Romney Marsh. We need to do that in order to prevent people being driven away.

Moves should include a real commitment to keeping open the surgeries used by locals GPs, looking at new ways to run local post offices so that branches and counters can be opened up.

We also need to support local shops and community businesses which are struggling due to higher costs and regulations in force.

Q Romney Marsh is a valuable resource for such things as agriculture and also it's a nature reserve which makes it an important tourist destination and attraction. How important is this?

A That's right. The Marsh is a fantastic environment in terms of both the nature there and its history but it's also a place where people live and work.

Kent is called the Garden of England but it is called the Garden of England because of the things we make and produce, not just the way it looks.

The siren of the sea

BY NICK AMES

A LAUNCH patrolling the county's coast is Kent police's newest weapon in the fight against crime and terrorism.

The Alexandra III carries on a tradition started in 1830, when the force used rowing boats – but she is the first craft at the disposal of officers since 1995.

She will be tackling illegal immigration, drug trafficking, people smuggling and terrorism.

The 53-foot long vessel, which is capable of speeds up to 27 knots, was originally designed as a prototype lifeboat but was modified for police work at a cost of £150,000.

She has been partially funded by the rise in the police share of the council tax in 2007.

Called a "floating police station" by Chief Constable Michael Fuller, she has a crew of three but can carry up to 16 – including firearms and other specialist teams.

The boat will work alongside two existing high-speed rigid inflatable craft, which are used for intercept work.

She has been called the Alexandra III as Kent police have already had an Alexandra I and II – named after the daughter of the late Duke and Duchess of Kent, who is also first cousin to the Queen.

The boat will be based at Sheerness on the Isle of Sheppey, but her patrol area encompasses the whole of the Kent coastline, which is the longest in England, stretching 350 miles from Dartford to Dungeness and a major gateway to continental Europe.

Ann Barnes, chair of the Kent Police

FLOATING POLICE STATION: The Alexandra III will patrol the county's 350-mile coastline Authority, officially launched the Alexandra III in a champagne ceremony last Wednesday.

She said: "I'm really pleased to have this new asset that will act as our main police boat. Those who live or work by the sea will hopefully notice a police presence on the waters."

"An effective police force has to be able to stretch from dealing with localised problems to international organised crime and terrorism."

The boat is designed to operate alongside the country's Border Agency and will also be used to tackle rogue shipping.

Mr Fuller said: "This boat will be invaluable in increasing our capability and visibility around the Kent coast and in the county's waterways."

"It will dramatically enhance the work we already do with our colleagues in other police forces and agencies, and help prevent the use of our coast and rivers for organised crime and terrorism."

"With its crew it will act as a virtual floating police station and provide protection and service to everyone in Kent."

Superintendent Andrew Lyttle, who has led the project, added: "This represents three years of planning and I'm delighted that the marine boat is going to add so much value to our policing effort."

Kent cops put in big overtime bill

POLICE officers in Kent claimed more than £12.5 million in overtime last year, new figures show.

The payments, made to constables and sergeants for working additional hours, was the seventh highest of all the 53 police forces in the UK.

The overtime payments, uncovered by industry magazine Police Review in a Freedom of Information request, show more than half-a-billion pounds was paid to police officers in the UK last year.

The biggest overtime payments went to officers in the Met police, with the 31,000-strong force pocketing an extra £135.9m last year.

Next was Strathclyde in Scotland, which covers Glasgow, with a £26.1m overtime bill, followed by Greater Manchester with £25.1m.

West Midlands came fourth with £20m, Thames Valley was fifth with £15.7m, and just above Kent was Northamptonshire with £15m.

The British Transport Police billed a total of £10.2m in overtime, with the smallest claims coming from Humberside police, where the additional hours bill came to just £1.6m.

Forces in Gwent, the City of London, West Yorkshire and Central Scotland failed to provide information about overtime payments, so the nationwide figure will be significantly higher.

Julie Nesbit, chair of the Police Federation of England and Wales' constables central committee, said overtime is going up as forces are in desperate need of more officers.

She said: "Forces across the UK are saying they will reduce the number of constables and the workload is definitely not being reduced, so overtime is the only answer."

It has been suggested that the Government could scrap police overtime and replace it with a higher basic wage.

But a Home Office spokesman denied this.

Homes get £10m fix-up

COUNCILS across the county are to receive £10 million over three years to spend on improving homes.

Tonbridge and Malling, Tunbridge Wells, Sevenoaks, Maidstone, Ashford, Dartford, Gravesham and Medway councils have been jointly awarded £9.75m by the South East Regional Housing Board.

Jill Anderson, Tonbridge and Malling's cabinet member for housing, said: "By adding funding for renewable energy sources to our list of grants, we can encourage people to help protect our environment and save money."

Fundraisers have a ball for Demelza House

MORE than £100,000 was raised at the recent Demelza Charity Ball at Leeds Castle.

The total amount was boosted by a massive contribution from the ball's sponsors, Brakes Group of Ashford, who presented a cheque for £50,000.

The Sittingbourne-based charity, which provides hospice care for children with life-limiting illnesses across the county and beyond, had arranged a medieval banquet in the grounds of the castle using the company's ingredients.

More than 500 guests enjoyed a night of feasting and pageantry, together with entertainers and musicians.

Popular DJ Neil Kefford, who presents Invicta's 'Kent's Home Run', hosted the auction in the guise of King Henry VIII.

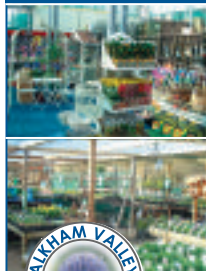

There was high bidding for prizes ranging from a private box to see Kylie in concert at the O2 Arena, a recording session with X Factor star Ben Mills, a luxury trip to Tokyo and a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to release gorillas back into the wild in the Congo.

A spectacular fireworks display over Leeds Castle and a lively night of dancing rounded off one of Demelza's biggest nights in the social calendar.

Oil beneath our feet?

BY SIMON ROBINSON

AN OIL company prospecting for "black gold" in the Sussex hills also has a licence to explore Kent for deposits of the fossil fuel.

This could spark an oil rush in the countryside of the Garden of England.

With prices of crude oil rocketing, Northern Petroleum is exploring any new reserves and has already targeted an area of the South Downs in West Sussex.

Now the company is carrying out exploratory work to see if deposits can be located in this county and should any be discovered the licence means they can be extracted.

Exploration

West Sussex County Council last week voted to allow the oil barons to chop down an area of woodland and build a 120ft high drilling rig.

Council officers said they felt there was an "over-riding need" for oil exploration within this country.

And it this means deposits worth a massive £12 billion could fuel company profits – the first stage in a potential large-scale drilling project in the South East.

A statement from Northern Petroleum

DRILL OF THE CHASE: Oil barons could be turning their attentions to the Garden of England reads: "[The company] have a Petroleum Exploration and Development Licence in Kent. At present we are still doing in-house geological and geophysical work on these areas, and it is too premature as to where and when we may drill".

But the company added it is very keen on exploring reserves within the UK borders as the global price for oil has rocketed and supplies from countries such as those in the Middle East and Eastern Europe can be irregular.

The Sussex site, at Markwells Wood near Chichester, is estimated to contain the equivalent of 200 million barrels of fuel – potentially worth £12bn.

Richard Latham – the real-life equivalent of TV's Dallas star JR Ewing – is chairman of Northern Petroleum.

Amidst opposition to the drilling from environmentalists, he has vowed to do all he can to protect the countryside.

The company has already agreed to plant more woodland round the site – which will be concreted – and return it to its original state when operations are finished.

But Alice Farr of the Woodland Trust still called the drilling "an act of vandalism" – even though no objections came from the Environment Agency or Natural England.

The southern area of England, because of its limestone and sandstone base rock, is a perfect place for large oil deposits to be formed.

The law currently allows exploration for valuable fuels in any area – even national parks – if the benefits to the country are thought to be sufficient.

In the event of oil being successfully extracted for refining the Treasury would receive around 50 per cent of the proceeds with the oil companies pocketing the rest.

'Nightingale set the standard for hospital hygiene'

HOSPITAL board meetings need to focus more on patient care to avoid repeats of the superbug outbreaks in west Kent, according to one of the country's leading health campaigners.

Baroness Audrey Emerton of Tunbridge Wells and Clerkenwell, was awarded a life peerage after a long and distinguished career in nursing.

She visited Benenden Hospital, which is an independent hospital near Cranbrook, to mark National Nurses Day on Monday last week.

The day is held in celebration of the birthday of Florence Nightingale.

Baroness Emerton said: "She died 98 years ago and yet we still celebrate her birthday – the reason is her legacy."

"It is because of her basic standards in nursing, basic hygiene, nutrition and care. Florence Nightingale, of course, invented hygiene in the Crimean War. She set up the foundation of the nursing profession."

Hygiene, comfort and compassion for patients were the cornerstones of Nightingale's Notes of Nursing and remain vital today, she said.

KOS Media is currently running a campaign to promote good hygiene practices in hospital and healthcare centres across Kent.

Baroness Emerton agreed hygiene was hugely important if infection rates of superbugs such as MRSA and Clostridium difficile were to be kept down.

She spoke to nurses at Benenden about their work and congratulated the hospital on winning Top Independent Employer in the recent Nursing Times awards.

The hospital has not had one case of MRSA or C diff since 2000, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Asked what she thought the key to its success was, Baroness Emerton said: "Well, I suppose small is beautiful. The place is spotless and hand hygiene is available for everyone. What is interesting is their cleaners are their employees, not contracted."

"The ward sisters can control their own environment."

Spirit in the sky

THE Spirit of Kent will be flying high this summer as the county's very own Spitfire takes to the air.

The restored fighter is flown at displays in memory of the 131 County of Kent Squadron – a wartime RAF unit whose Spitfires were funded entirely by donations from people who lived in the county.

The veteran aircraft was bought by Peter Monk and Mike Simpson in 2006, who keep it at Biggin Hill airport.

Robin Brooks, from Maidstone, has written extensively about the aircraft and its history.

He said: "When you think about the Battle of Britain you think about the Spitfire and Hurricane, and during those days the skies above Kent swarmed with them."

"The fact that the people of Kent actually clubbed together enough money to fund a whole squadron shows how much the aircraft was held in high esteem."

"We feel it still is and a Spitfire in the skies above is an inspiring sight. It was restored to former glories to commemorate the people of the county and the fact that the Battle of Britain was fought overhead."

The Spirit of Kent will stage a

Then, on Sunday, June 15 it will

Pupils who dare to be themselves bag double win

BUSINESS LEADERS: Nick Holley, Katie Troke, Lucy Blackwall and Will Wiggins are delighted with their awards

FOUR students from Pent Valley Technology have won second place in an awards scheme to discover the south east's future business leaders.

Lucy Blackwall, 17, Nick Holley, 16, Katie Troke, 16, and Will Wiggins, 16, were awarded second place at the Young Enterprise competition at the University of Kent on Thursday, May 8.

The sixth form pupils were recognised for their Dare 2 Be business group, in which they demonstrated their business skills by raising over £250 through a variety of activities.

These included holding a school disco and organising a quiz night for teachers at their school.

They also toured Folkestone's primary schools Christmas fairs with a craft stall, where children paid to make Christmas masks, glittery tree decorations and snow globes.

The Pent Valley pupils had bought the items for the venture online, leading to a healthy profit margin.

Nick Holley, the managing director of the group, said: "We formed this company to offer a range of services, and we raised money by holding a disco, a craft stall and a quiz night for the teachers."

■ BY LAUREN MUMFORD

"We have been trying to meet the needs of the local community."

Nick explained how the students had run Dare 2 Be along the lines of a real company.

He said: "We all had our own roles in the project, and we had group meetings every week."

Receiving their trophy at the University of Kent was a great moment for the company, he said.

"We are proud to have got through to the stage we did, and we were pleased to win two awards as well."

"We thought we deserved to be there, but we were still shocked when they read out our names."

Dare 2 Be also won awards for producing the best reports and having the best stand.

The name of the company reflected how the pupils had dared to achieve and succeed, said Katy Tibbles, vocational learning coordinator at Pent Valley.

"The idea was to have something that would appeal to young people, symbolising how they had dared to come out of themselves and try something new," said Katy.

"It was great. The group has gained some valuable experience and has built up an impressive set of skills."

Active board helps pupils communicate

PUPILS at Capel le Ferne Primary School will be learning from the latest advanced technology thanks to a donation from an IT company.

Promethean has given the school an Activboard-2, which has been installed in the school hall to teach pupils about their twin school in France – and the school has already put Activboards in all of its classrooms.

ICT coordinator, James Blomfield said: "During assemblies we have used the technology to zoom in on maps and show where our partnership school is located and have created multimedia flip charts that engage and stimulate the children."

SEND your schools news and pictures to yoursheway@kosmedia.co.uk. You can also upload your own video clips of schools events on to www.yourkenttv.co.uk.

Wonder of water

CHERITON Primary School will be holding a Water Wonder Week to raise awareness of how crucial water is to the world.

All this week the school will be putting on activities including a shadow puppet workshop on Monday and a visit from the Rock Pool Road Show on Tuesday.

The children will also have the chance to make boats, swim in a river and compose a water themed piece of music.

Michael flies high

A PUPIL at Harvey Grammar School has been awarded an RAF scholarship.

Michael Hertz, 17, from Densole, is only the second pupil in the country to be offered a sixth form learning certificate with the force.

Michael said: "It's fantastic that I have achieved this award. I am looking forward to my future as a pilot."

your shepway blogger

Each week we get a mystery writer to air their views on living in the district of Shepway...

It must be summer – I'm behind a very slow tractor

NOT only do they get to own huge slices of our green and (mostly) pleasant land, they think they own the damn roads too.

Yep, our farming pals are at it again: summer's here and so it's time for them to take a long, slow drive between their fields – just as we're off to work, on the school run, or returning from work of course – holding me and everyone else up in a long tail behind them.

We have British Summer Time purely to help you farmers get more daylight so you can count your EU handout cash.

So do us all a favour and drive your tractors and combines when the sun comes up – about 5am if you hadn't noticed – so I can drive to work at 8am without getting stuck.

All this happens on roads that I pay for.

Yes, firstly the extortion that is my annual road tax (£165) and then the tax I'm paying on the fuel in my car.

I pay £1.25 for a litre of diesel (more than five quid a gallon) while farmer bloody Giles on his huge fat-wheeled tractor potters along at 20 miles an hour on red diesel which he gets tax free. Terrific.

The sight of a tractor crawling at between 10 and 15 mph followed by a sweating row of seething car drivers is as much a feature of the English summer as the inevitable plucky Brit failing at Wimbledon.

The winter months are mercifully free of people who seem to regard themselves as some sort of "tractorocracy".

Last week I turned onto a main Kent A road. But trundling past were six – yes six – tractors in a row. All proceeding at that painfully slow pace followed by at least 20 cars on one of the hottest days of the year.

But did the tractors make any move to step aside. What do you think?

They went along at a snail's pace until they reached a field and then disappeared.

For people who travel 500 yards out of towns, this is a summer menace which needs to be addressed and some forward thinking people in the Midlands did just that.

They created the Considerate Farmers' Voluntary Code for Highway Movements.

It suggested that tractors should not be on the road from 7am to 9am and 4pm to 6.30pm.

They should drive close to the nearside kerb to make overtaking easier, pull over at every available lay-by, avoid travelling in convoys and finally ensure they are not overloaded so they spill stuff onto the road.

It had the full backing of the local councils and the police.

There was even a "Well Driven" sign to be displayed on tractors adhering to these rules.

Then there was a number to call so people could report farmer vehicles who were playing at being king of the road.

And in the first few weeks guess how many farmers signed up? Three, yes three.

So there you see the socially-aware attitude of the sons of the soil in the heart of England.

But I bet it would be three more than would sign up in Kent.

There's no time to lose if you want to Lounge

BY SIMON ROBINSON

ADVANCE warning: all cash-strapped, disorganised and 'I'll do it tomorrow' music fans look away now – early-bird tickets to this year's Lounge On The Farm festival have sold out.

Although the reduced-fee allocation to the Canterbury three-dayer has been snapped up, full-priced passes are still available.

And with indie rockers The Mystery Jets, Canadian starlets Holy F*ck and folk act Johnny Flynn And The Sussex Wit among the latest batch of top acts added to the bill, the £85 price tag for a weekend ticket still represents somewhat of a bargain.

To date, more than 60 bands, solo stars and DJs have agreed to perform at Merton Farm over the weekend of Friday to Sunday, July 11-13.

The main cowshed arena bill already boasts The Bees, Black Kids, Polka Party, Billy Childish, Art Brut and The Shortwave Set, while scores of more established acts have been allocated slots on the six other stages.

The Sheep Dip, for example, will play host to Those Dancing Days, Magistrates and Los Campesinos, and the Hoe Down features DJ sets from two 80s superstars – former Specials frontman Terry Hall and his Dexty's Midnight Runners equivalent Kevin Rowland.

A festival spokesman said: "With an amazing line-up and set in the idyllic surrounds of Merton Farm, Lounge On The Farm has shown that boutique festivals can make waves in such a competitive market."

"As the festival season gears up and the weather gets hotter, it's time to get your tickets while you still can."

Sunday at LOTF has been dubbed Local Heroes' day, with acts from across the county dominating the line-up.

Among those to perform are Underground Heroes, Lupen Crook And The Murderbirds, UpCDownC, Brigadier Ambrose, What Would Jesus Drive, Zombie Met Girl, Seven Storey Down and Intraverse.

A full weekend ticket costs £85 for adults, £40 for children. A family ticket, based on two adults and two children, costs £180. Day entry costs £35 for adults and £20 for children. Those under the age of five go free.

TALK TIME

DAVID BATCHELOR

The sculptor, artist and writer, based in London, has an exhibition at the Metropole Gallery in Folkestone from June 14

Tell us about yourself

I am an artist who works mainly in colour and found materials. I have been working with this kind of material and subject for the last 15 years or so. When I went to college I was originally a painter, everyone was in my day, and subsequently I found was more able to find ways of working using three dimensional objects and materials I found in the streets and ordinary everyday shops.

What made you change from painting to using three-dimensional shapes?

I wasn't a good enough painter would be the quick answer! I found it very difficult to represent the world rather than just do a painting, and I found a way of using objects from that world and modifying them seem to work a lot better for me.

What themes do you try to express through your use of colours?

My main interest is how our experience of colour has been changed by industrialisation and electrification; the colours we see today are nothing we could have experienced a hundred years ago. With plastics and particularly petro-chemical colours in plastics new versions of those colours are always being invented. I am more interested in the colours of industrialisation and of the city than I am of the colours of nature.

How does it feel to be exhibiting in Folkestone?

It is a fantastic project; the spaces here at the Metropole Gallery are one of the most beautiful gallery spaces I have been in to work in. The fact it is completely emptied out makes it even more beautiful. It has fantastic sunlight and is a great space.

House exposed so protection needed

It is good to see that the Environment Agency is taking its job seriously when it comes to protecting the landscape of Romney Marsh.

New sea defences are welcome at a time when we are constantly being told that water levels are rising.

But I would be interested to know when the final work is taking place as I actually live in a place quite a bit to the south of where the defences have been erected.

And a shingle beach makes my seafront home very exposed.

Ignoring town is just too rough

How can Folkestone not make the Rough Guide series of travel book?

It is the start of the Channel Tunnel (from the UK side) so it must get a mention as a jumping off point to Europe.

Also what about the Leas and the Old High Street, or the Creative Quarter and the whole regeneration plans. Then there is the Orient Express stopping here.

It is absurd that Hythe gets a good write up and we are ignored.

New building gives good opportunities

Good luck to Folkestone Academy in its battle to beat Chelsea and some public toilets from Gravesend as best new building in the UK.

What should be taken into account is the fact that it is providing opportunities for a group of people who have had little to assist them in recent years.

That is of course unlike being a place for pampered men to hang out displaying their tans and discussing their designer accessories.

Or the Chelsea training complex for that matter.

developing confidence and individual talents

Frustrated to know that your child could succeed but is making slow progress?

Is it because of going unnoticed in a large school or a large class size?

Is your child lacking the confidence to flourish?

At Dover College, we are as keen as any other school to cater for the most able pupils and do it well. However, our recent inspection highlighted our great ability as a school to enable our more average pupils to achieve far better than their potential suggested on entry. By offering boys and girls timely affirmation and appropriate challenges in a caring environment, many of them surprise their parents and, more importantly, themselves with their achievements.

Pupils can join Dover College at any time of the year if there is a place available.

Make a stand against monstrous urinal

Heaven forbid if Strange Cargo win over the council in an effort to plonk a huge chunk of stainless steel right next to the Lower Leas lift – to call it an eyesore would be the understatement of the century.

Just look at the touch screen monstrosities near the new shopping precinct – I thought they looked like outdoor urinals.

I have made a point of passing by them on a regular basis and I have never seen anyone using them.

One thing that caught my eye was the Strange Cargo logo in a prominent position. Is this because Strange Cargo paid for them and their installation?

I will be at the planning meeting in June and if you care about the imposition of this misplaced urinal you should be there too.

Three Ps sum up the new London leader

Last week your blogger praised the appalling Boris Johnson as a good choice for mayor of London.

Well, I think he or she is sadly mistaken. This so-called "toff" will prove an absolute nightmare and he has absolutely no idea of the problems facing normal people.

The Conservative Party has once again shown its true colours – the party of public school, privilege and posh.

One law for famous, another for the rest

At a time when there appears to be a public outcry over drugs it is absurd that the singer Amy Winehouse is allowed to escape without any censure after she was actually filmed taking a banned substance.

You can rest assured that should that have been a non-celebrity they would have faced the whole wrath of the law.

It used to be one law for the rich and one for the poor – now it is one for the famous and one for the rest of us.

Competitive sport needed for health

I saw in a survey recently that England was second in a "European Fat League" of overweight people with almost six in ten people registering to heavy on the scales.

The only country to beat us was Scotland – presumably thanks to all those fried Mars Bars.

Yet at the same time this Government is cutting down the opportunities for competitive sport by claiming that winners and losers should not be recognised in case it damages youngsters' self esteem.

Rugby club have done the town proud

We would like to congratulate Dover Rugby Club's 1st XV at the end of a very successful season for their accomplishments.

To reach the quarter-finals of the EDF Vase, come second in their first season of London SE3 and then win the play-off in a very exciting match to gain promotion to London South 2 division – sealing five promotions in six seasons – is quite an achievement.

It has been a roller-coaster of a season. Despite injuries and at times atrocious weather, the team played with spirit and have been a formidable side, especially at home.

They have kept the spectators on tenterhooks, but we have enjoyed almost every minute of the season. They have been a credit to their coach, Graham Tonks, the club and the town of Dover.

The singing
footballer

Almost four decades on, David Essex is still a musical legend

WHEN the young David Essex dreamed of being a footballer, a successful music career must have been the last thing on his mind.

But Essex chose to abandon soccer for singing and went on to become an internationally acclaimed musician, as well as a heartthrob for ladies everywhere. Now a composer and star of both stage and screen, Essex, 60, has a lot to look back on after almost four decades in the business.

He grew up in east London with the surname Cook and joined West Ham United Juniors in the hope of becoming a footballer.

But in the end he decided to go in a more artistic direction, and when he auditioned for the London production of the musical Godspell in 1971 at the age of 23, his life changed forever.

Chosen for the role of Jesus, Essex shot to fame amid ecstatic reviews and received two major awards. This led to a lead role in the film That'll Be The Day co-starring Ringo Starr, followed by the sequel Stardust with Larry Hagman and Adam Faith.

Following the rise and fall of pop star Jim Maclaine, they are still regarded as two of the best films about the rock scene.

Hysteria

While filming, Essex wrote and recorded Rock On, which became a huge hit in both the UK and the US, securing his status as a global star. It was followed by Lamplight and the number one hits Hold Me Close and Gonna Make You A Star.

His first UK tour caused chaos, generating scenes of fan hysteria on the level of Beatlemania. He was nominated for a Grammy for Rock On and attracted the compliments of no less a person than John Lennon.

Despite his popularity in the States, Essex turned down several lucrative deals in order to return home and produce several successful albums. He demonstrated his skills as a theatrical performer when offered the part of Che in Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber's Evita, but he was also encouraged to do more straight acting by Richard Burton.

TALENTED: David Essex has made a name for himself as both an actor and a musician

He starred in and wrote the score for his motorbike racing film Silver Dream Racer, which generated another chart hit with Silver Dream Machine. Television viewers were kept happy with the 1989 series The River, in which he played a charming lock keeper. As well as popular music, Essex worked on a ballet score for the Russian All Stars Company in the mid-90s, while keeping true to his Romany roots by becoming patron of the Gypsy Council.

In 1999 he was awarded an OBE for his services to charity. The 21st century has seen more recording and roles in musicals, most recently playing George in Aspects of Love, which visited Kent earlier this year.

The show starts at 7.30pm and tickets cost £25. Phone the box office on 01322 220000, or book online at www.orchardtheatre.co.uk.

SIMPLY BALLROOM

Monday, June 2
Leas Cliff Hall, Folkestone

ALL the glamour of the dance floor is coming to Folkestone in the exciting production Simply Ballroom.

Hosted by Sam Kane and Sophie Lawrence, the show features a host of world-class dance champions giving life to the choreography of Strictly Come Dancing's Anton Du Beke and Erin Boag.

Successful theatre, television and singing star Sam Kane recently visited Kent in the musical Hot Flush! and earlier this year he appeared in Emmerdale, alongside his wife Linda Lusardi. Sophie Lawrence is perhaps best known for her long-running role as Diane Butcher in Eastenders, but she has since racked up an impressive list of acting credits on stage and screen.

Having made dancing queens of opera singer Lesley Garrett, presenter Esther Rantzen, actress Patsy Palmer and impressionist Jan Ravens on Strictly Come Dancing, Anton Du Beke's choreography skills are beyond doubt. With dance partner Erin Boag, he has created a stunning celebration of the magic of ballroom.

The show starts at 7.45pm and tickets are priced from £20.50 to £22.50. To book call the box office on 0844 847 1776 or visit the website at www.leascliffhall.co.uk.

THE 39 STEPS

Tuesday to Saturday
May 19 to May 31
Marlowe Theatre, Canterbury

HITCHCOCK'S classic spy thriller gets a hilarious makeover in stage comedy The 39 Steps.

It follows the adventures of our hero Richard Hannay, a stiff-upper-lip kind of chap with plenty of British gung-ho and a neatly trimmed moustache, as he encounters an array of dodgy characters. From double crossing secret agents to incredibly beautiful women, Hannay must negotiate a number of pitfalls in order to solve a mystery.

This inventive comedy thriller features just four actors tackling 139 roles during 100 minutes of fast-paced action. It comes direct from the West End and is on its way to Broadway, having won the Laurence Olivier Award for best new comedy.

The 1935 film directed by Alfred Hitchcock, based on John Buchan's novel, has been hailed as one of the greatest films ever made. Featuring an innocent man on the run, one of Hitchcock's favourite themes, it starred Robert Donat and Madeleine Carroll.

Tickets are priced from £11 to £21. To book call the box office on 01227 787787 or visit the website at www.marlowetheatre.com.

OZRIC TENTACLES

Saturday, May 24
West Coast Bar, Margate

EXPERIENCE the psychedelic sound of the legendary Ozric Tentacles in Margate this weekend.

Influenced by Steve Hillage and Gong, the Ozrics' sound is a mind-blowing blend of thumping bass lines, sound effects and keyboard and guitar work to get feet moving.

The complex nature of their often unusual time signatures and Eastern influenced modes is sometimes deliberately confusing, but this is complemented by the odd moment of straightforward funky groove.

They also use a number of electronic elements and a strong influence from dub and ambient music.

A wide range of instruments are pressed into service to create this unique sound, including electric and acoustic guitars, flutes, recorders, xylophones and even digitally tweaked human voices.

Since they formed just under 25 years ago The Ozrics have risen from small festival stages to performing for audiences of thousands. This will be their only South East gig this year, so do not miss the chance to catch them in action.

Doors open at 7.30pm and tickets cost £15. Buy tickets in advance at the West Coast Bar or Soundhouse in Broadstairs, by calling 01843 571684.

You can email westcoast-bar1@aol.co.uk or online at www.sugarlive.co.uk.

ON GENERAL RELEASE

CHARLIE BARTLETT (15)

Expelled from private school, Charlie Bartlett (Anton Yelchin) finds himself at a regular high school. His geeky appearance earns him a first day beating, so his mom (Hope Davis) calls in the family psychiatrist. Then Charlie sets himself up as a school agony aunt.

SHUTTER (15)

A remake of the 2004 horror hit from Thailand about a photographer and his girlfriend involved in a tragic road accident who later notice ghostly figures in the backgrounds of their pictures. Joshua Jackson and Rachel Taylor star in a supernatural frightener that suggests that the spirits never leave us.

SMART PEOPLE (15)

Professor Lawrence Wetherhold (Dennis Quaid) is an intellectual giant, but flummoxed when it comes to love and family. When he accidentally encounters former student Janet (Sarah Jessica Parker), the result is often comical, sometimes heartbreaking, for everyone around him.

Emile doesn't have time for life in the slow lane

BY ELLIE GENOWER

HE RECEIVED critical acclaim for his sensitive portrayal of Chris McCandless in last year's Sean Penn-directed film, Into the Wild.

So it was assumed that up-and-coming actor Emile Hirsch would go straight to another small, character-led film, building up his fledgling career slowly but surely.

But the 22-year-old wasn't having a bit of it. He hopped from the snowy climes of Alaska to the futuristic, colourful and slightly warped world of Matrix directors Larry and Andy Wachowski's Speed Racer.

"It was like being in a sauna for a year and then someone running in and throwing you into an ice bath," says Emile, who plays the lead role in the movie adaptation of the original Japanese cartoon.

Emile plays car-crazy kid Speed in a futuristic world of corporate greed, race-fixing and dirty tactics.

To create the larger-than-life setting, he and fellow cast members Christina Ricci (Trixie), Susan Sarandon (Mom), John Goodman (Pops) and Matthew Fox (Racer X) spent much of the time filming in Berlin against a green screen, before the Wachowskis added their special brand of post-production computer wizardry.

"It was a shock. We were outdoors every day on Into the Wild, climbing mountains and crossing rivers, so to jump onto the green screen was tough," says Emile.

"It is harder because you've got to be on your game and it's easy to slip up, so you've always got to be focused. The real environment is always easier on the actor, because it's more natural to react to."

Speed Racer is a character who has plenty of focus. The film begins with Speed and his family trying to deal with the death of his adored brother Rex Racer, before Speed grows up to become a star racer himself.

VIEW THIS PREVIEW

yourkenttv.co.uk

After turning down a lucrative offer and untold riches to race for corrupt corporate giant Royalton Industries, he and his family go it alone with his dad's racing cars, leaving Speed aiming to compete in the ultimate race: the Grand Prix.

But although mind-blowing effects certainly create an edge-of-your-seat experience, does the growing reliance on computer wizardry in films like Speed Racer detract from plot and character? Emile thinks not.

"The Wachowskis made this about the family," he says. "Speed is fighting against the greed of the corporate world and trying to find the meaning of life and all that."

He hopes that Speed Racer will eventually become a trilogy, emulating The Matrix, one of his favourite films.

Clearly, before any more films are made, Speed Racer has to hit the spot at the box office. And with big competition this summer from the likes of Indiana Jones, Batman, Iron Man and the Incredible Hulk, it's not going to be an easy task.

"The thing that's really going to separate

POLE POSITION: Emile Hirsch is a young man in a hurry and Speed Racer could turbo-charge his fledgling career

Speed Racer from some of those big summer movies, is the fact that this is a family film," Emile says.

"Some of those other movies are a little bit more adult and dark, which is cool, but Speed Racer is really a movie made for the whole family, that kids are going to love but adults are going to love too."

"And it's one of those movies where you almost want to stand up and cheer at points."

Thirty minutes to boost health

Curves

WITH today's busy lifestyle, a fitness facility in Ashford is promising to transform your physical and mental well-being with an easy to follow, short-blast programme.

Curves' popular exercise programme has proved a bit hit, giving women with hectic schedules the perfect opportunity to get fit quick.

Owner of Curves, Gina Hawkins, said: "A common complaint of women is that they just don't have time to exercise."

"The Curves 30-minute complete workout provides the solution. For half an hour you move around a circuit changing stations every 30 seconds. You need not rush to a class or worry about a schedule. When you turn up your workout begins - just jump in anywhere and start.

"The unique features of hydraulic resistance make it possible to perform strength and cardiovascular training at the same time. You push with one muscle group and pull back with the opposing one. The intensity easily elevates and sustains your target heart rate.

"Sustained heart rate activity conditions your body to access fat for energy.

"During the first few minutes of exercise your muscles will primarily burn energy in the bloodstream and glycogen stored in the muscle. As you continue to exercise, your body will begin to access more stored fat and your body will become more proficient at accessing fat as you exercise on a regular basis.

"The 30-second intervals were chosen because they are the optimal time for a strength training set. Your muscles can 'sprint' for about half-a-minute before they begin to exhaust."

Fashionable store has grand designs

Vida

IT may still be a relative newcomer, but designer store Vida has quickly become one of the most popular places to shop for those wanting to be en vogue.

Based at the Merham-Le-Hatch Business Village in Ashford, Vida stocks a range of accessories and opened its doors at the fast-growing site in November. And with well-informed staff on hand to give valuable advice, it is growing in reputation.

Owner Margaret Bracewell explains: "I sell designer handbags, shoes, boots, leather gloves, leather belts, leather jewellery boxes, purses and scarves. All the goods are exclusive and individually sourced.

"As an independent retailer I can give individual and informed advice to each customer. All the stock is exclusive and is displayed to highlight each individual piece in its own space.

"The designer handbags sell very well, particularly the Italian company, Ripani and London firm Billy Bag.

"Customer service is vital to running a business, alongside stocking the quality of goods to suit the requirements of customers. Staff must be knowledgeable about the products. In the case of Vida, the location and design of the shop in a beautiful historic area can only add to the success.

"The Merham-Le-Hatch Business Village is in such a lovely setting. It's a gem of a location with some superb businesses as neighbours, such as the Secret Garden restaurant and Macknade Fine Foods to name just two."

TOP TIPS

Vida, Merham-Le-Hatch

This spring and summer seasons' colours are bright zingy cobalt blue, fuchsia pink, brilliant red and yellow. Many of the leather goods at this year's London fashion week were in patent and metallic finishes so discard winter's gloom and shine.

Curves

Just one ounce of dark chocolate has twice the amount of anti-oxidants as red wine. Weight training is essential to burn body fat and is the shapely woman's best kept secret. Long term exercise also improves your immune system.

Think SlimNTrim

Did you know that you can put on as much fat from eating too much fatty or sugary foods as you can by not eating enough nutritious foods? You burn fat after exercising, so choose weight training as it can give a burn that lasts up to 24 hours.

YOUR TV REVIEW

POINTS OF VIEW: ITV1's Loose Women is the perfect programme for an afternoon snooze

THE F WORD
Channel 4, 9pm, Tuesdays
LOOSE WOMEN
ITV1, 12.30pm, weekdays

BY TOM BETTS

TAKE one celebrity chef, trim off silly hat and apron and baste in his own self-confidence.

Add a cart-load of fancy ingredients, a barely capable bunch of wannabe cooks and leave to stand between commercial breaks.

Sprinkle with a handful of risqué language, bring to the boil and simmer for ten minutes then plate up, before placing in the fridge. Leave to marinate in its own arrogance for at least six weeks and serve your F Word speciale to an unwitting public.

Yes, this hour of saucy language and even saucier food has quickly become Channel Four's flagship food show and has won an army of fans.

Striding through the aisles on his way to berate a team of ordinary people like some kind of prize fighter, master of ceremonies Ramsay enters the heat of the kitchen and reminds us just why he became the phenomenon he is.

Hard, unscrupulous and not afraid to call a spade a f spade, our man in the whites has returned for series four.

Even on bad form, such as the American version of the otherwise excellent Kitchen Nightmares, GR is always worthy of your attention – if only to see what poor soul trying his best he will compare to male genitalia that week.

Boiling Point, the show that catapulted Ramsey into the public eye in 1998 is still the most fascinating thing in which he's been involved, but at least here he is allowed to swear and castigate members of the public rather than desperate celebrities, which is far more fun.

If ever there was a bad title for a TV show it's the appallingly-titled, lunchtime snooze-athon, Loose Women. Here a panel of four old duffers haggle over who hates men the most then fawn over their often male soap star guests to the sycophantic cheering of the bussed in audience of blue-rinsed pensioners.

Didn't this kind of thing used to be called sexism?!

These women are far from loose, but then I guess the Man Hating Female Moan Fest doesn't sound half as good, even if it is far, far more accurate.

YOUR WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

BY RUSSELL GRANT

AQUARIUS (Jan 21-Feb 19)

YOUR reputation could take a hit this week. It's possible you promised more than you could deliver. If that's the case, you owe everyone involved an apology. Funds you were expecting may not be forthcoming. Don't be afraid to rely on others when the chips are down.

TAURUS (Apr 21-May 21)

A CLOSE partnership is showing signs of strain. One of you may be working at the expense of your personal life. The two of you will have to work hard to recover the magic that first drew you together. It may not be possible to get paid what you deserve this week.

To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Taurus 09067-531753

LEO (Jul 24-Aug 23)

IT'S important to take a more reasoned approach with a partner who has let you down. There's a good chance that your friend is completely oblivious to the hurt he or she has caused. If you're going to restore your relationship, you need to have a calm discussion.

To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Leo 09067-531756

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22)

YOU want to be appreciated, and that's only natural, but everyone is pretty self absorbed this week. All of your hard work could go completely unnoticed. If this happens, don't despair. Just do something nice for yourself as a reward or resentment will get the best of you.

To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Scorpio 09067-531759

PISCES (Feb 20-Mar 20)

IT'S hard to be receptive to people whose ideas are completely opposite to yours. Still, you're going to have to work alongside them. Try putting your opinions aside, at least until the job is done. You may be surprised to learn that you can actually like somebody who has a different approach.

GEMINI (May 22-Jun 22)

YOUR health may not be very robust right now. It's important to slow down when you start feeling tired or you could contract a low grade virus. Sometimes being true to yourself means turning away the people you love. Spending time alone can replenish your energy.

CURIOSITY could put you on a dangerous path. Be careful where you poke your nose, or it could get slapped. A mysterious ache could drive you to distraction. Beware of being overly harsh on neighbour who is just trying to do his best. A little compassion goes a long way.

RESIST the urge to play the victim. Although it feels like the world is against you, it's important to remain calm when challenged by critics. The moment you let down your guard is the time when your rivals will move in for the kill. Your boss expects more of you than others.

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 20)

THIS week brings some important challenges for intimate relationships. You may have some unreasonable expectations of a partner. The sooner you adopt a practical view the happier you'll be. Work might prove difficult, too. Slow and steady wins the race with regard to this matter.

IT will take all your self-discipline to focus on work. An admirer could play hot and cold with you. You don't appreciate these tactics; you need to know where you stand. It may be wise to put some distance between you, at least until your friend gets serious.

AN emotional attachment to possessions could create lots of heartache. At some point, you need to accept the fact that your bank balance bears no relation to your personal worth. Nagging fears could undermine your confidence. It's all a matter of adopting a positive outlook.

Try unadulterated luxury

BY TOM MASTERS

ON the elegant Seabourn Spirit, we sailed the seas for 17 magical days from Alexandria to Dubai – and found out exactly why this ship is rated among the top six cruising experiences in the world.

Even professionals, captains of industry and international businessmen slow down eventually to enjoy the fruits of successful careers. On the three Seabourn ships – three more join its tiny fleet in 2009-11 – they readily pay £300 per person per day, often more, for something pretty special.

Weighing barely 10,000 tonnes, the Spirit feels more like a megayacht carrying an exclusive party than a superliner.

Carrying just over 200 passengers, Seabourn ships have cornered a niche cruise market dedicated to pure, unadulterated luxury and unbeatable service standards. Yet Seabourn belongs to Carnival, the biggest cruise company in the world, which also owns the P&O and Cunard lines.

SPARKLING SEA: The Seabourn Spirit offers the experience of a lifetime

Queuing has been quashed, the irritating business of having to sign for everything delicately set aside, tipping disregarded altogether.

All food, drinks and gratuities are included in the price, so, if you feel decadent, you can have champagne and caviar served poolside every afternoon.

From the moment we boarded Seabourn Spirit in Alexandria (after a rather lengthy coach drive from Cairo) we were indulged down to the last detail.

There are no cabins on these yachts, just suites.

Here we found every comfort – it was spacious and glamorous, with a marble-clad bathroom and walk-in closet, for those who don't travel light and like to pack a few little extras 'just in case', plush cotton robes and fine Egyptian linen. Add to that crystal glasses, complimentary fine wines, exotic fruit and fresh flowers.

With a 160-strong crew to look after 200 passengers, the level of personal service is stunning.

Nothing was too much trouble and their genuine enthusiasm for the part they played in life was refreshing. We boarded mid-afternoon and by the next morning we were impressed to be greeted by name by every crew member we met on our way to breakfast.

Most Seabourn guests are well-seasoned cruisers and experienced travellers – and they enjoy dressing up. The daily bulletin advises the dress code for each day, between casual, semi-formal or black tie.

The shore excursions, while fascinating, could be expensive, but they were once-in-a-lifetime opportunities; Petra, a nine-hour trip from Aqaba, Jordan, cost $199 per person and The Valley of the Kings was a two-day, one-night trip from Safage, Egypt and cost $829.

If you don't fancy the trek it can be just as much fun to enjoy a near-empty ship while others go ashore.

Along the way the ship visited Aqaba, Salalah, Khasab and, finally, Dubai.

On our final day, one passenger reflected: "The only way to stay cheerful at the end of a cruise is to reflect that it won't be too long before you are back on board."

PROPERTY NEWS

Indulge is icing on homebuyers' cake

HOMEBUYERS looking for a boost can take advantage of £1,000 of "indulgences" if they chose a new property from Redrow.

The developer is giving customers the chance to enhance their home with complimentary upgrades.

The offer extends to reservations made before this Sunday and comprises £1,000 to spend on items from Redrow's 'Indulge' collection.

Simon Bennett, group marketing director, said: "Our Indulge promotion is the icing on the cake and provides customers with something extra."

"They can use their voucher towards lots of different things, from integrated appliances for their fitted kitchen to granite worktops, ceramic flooring, a stylish fireplace or luxury carpets throughout their new home."

"We think people are fed up of hearing only doom and gloom about the housing market."

"There are still people who need or want to move and we are doing our best to help them."

"Our 'Re:assure' package already offers a range of help, advice and incentives, such as mortgage subsidies, part-exchange, help with stamp duty and legal fees, furniture packs or carpets."

The greener way to a warm feeling

THOSE looking to buy property with good energy-saving efficiency should cast an eye over the heating and plumbing system.

This could be as important as eco-friendly lightbulbs when it comes to protecting the environment.

Danny Davis, a senior technical engineer for the Institute of Plumbing and Heating Engineering, said condensing technologies, which generate more heat for less energy, should appeal to green-minded consumers.

He said: "Energy-conscious consumers would certainly be attracted to a house incorporating both energy and water-conserving technologies over a similar house without such measures."

Condensing technology makes boilers at least 10 per cent more efficient than traditional ones.

Since April 2005 it has been a legal requirement for new boilers to comply with a Seasonal Efficiency rating.

SLIGHTLY WOODEN: The traditional image of the shed as a man's cluttered refuge from the world no longer holds true in the post-credit squeeze environment

It's time for stylish sheds to come out of the closet

FROM humble beginnings, the garden shed has become a must-have accessory for the post-credit crunch property holder.

Traditionally a ramshackle affair which men used as a retreat and a place to pursue hobbies, the shed can now be anything from an outsourced office to a cocktail bar or a gymnasium.

And at a time when extending your home is a risk because of the sell-on value, a shed is far less expensive – and a buyer can turn it into their own particular favourite place at the bottom of the garden.

Estate agents claim houses with sheds are getting more interest from prospective buyers – especially when the building is linked to mains electricity and can be used as a handy place to install a computer.

One analyst said: "The shed has always been regarded as a refuge for the man of the house and to some extent that is true.

"But the old image of a place full of old garden equipment is not the case now."

"I have seen sheds with espresso machines in them, even flatscreen TVs with DVD players."

"At a time when space in the home is important and value for money is everything when it comes to a sale, a place which is far cheaper in cost than an additional room is very attractive."

"While a purpose-built gym might sell a house to a keep fit fanatic, a gym in a shed which can be turned into a cocktail bar or a laundry room or freezer store is attractive to all."

And for those working "out of the shed" it has a good pedigree.

Dylan Thomas wrote in a shed, while George Bernard Shaw worked on plays in a shed which could be rotated during the day to follow the course of the sun.

Police have also noticed the greater use of sheds – through an increase in burglaries.

Officers and insurance companies say sheds should be secured and fitted with an alarm if they contain anything of value.

MOTORS NEWS

Weekend will be a real money-saver for drivers

WITH fuel prices exceeding a record £5 per gallon, Kent BMW dealers are staging an EfficientDynamics Open Weekend (31 May/1 June) where drivers of all car makes and models can get a free check-up that could save them up to £120 a year.

Bookings can be made via www.bmw.co.uk and 'EfficientDynamics' – BMW's shorthand for simple money savers, but it also stands for new BMW technologies such as Start/Stop and Brake Energy Regeneration on new BMW models like the BMW 118d pictured, saving up to £520 a year.

Cyclists get Grand help in French charity ride

MOTOR power from Canterbury Chrysler, Jeep and Dodge dealer Dutton Forshaw boosted pedal power on the fifth annual Lady Mayoress' Charity Cycle Ride from Calais to Arras.

The Broad Oak Road dealership supplied a Chrysler Grand Voyager support vehicle 40 cyclists raising funds for The Paula Carr Trust and Save Canterbury Cathedral Appeal.

Adam becomes expert dealer number three

ASHFORD Motorline Renault executive Adam George, 23, has gained Motability accreditation (pictured) enabling him to give industry-recognised advice to disabled customers.

Adam, from Woodchurch, becomes the Hilton Road site's third Motability specialist able to help customers or nominated drivers to find the right model to suit their needs or guide them to converters who can carry out necessary adaptations on the cars.

"I'm really pleased I now have Motability accreditation," he said.

LOOKER: For a car where space is a priority, the 207 SW also looks chic with raked rear pillar and aluminium roof rails complementing lines derived from one of the market's sharpest looking superminis

Peugeot 207 SW says 'vive la MPV difference'

PEUGEOT has thought 'outside the box' on the MPV phenomenon.

While sister brand Citroën embraced the concept wholeheartedly, Peugeot avoided the typical 'one-box' MPV design and evolved its own 'space/sports wagon' or SW approach.

OK, you might dismiss our 207 SW test model as an estate car on steroids, but this offers almost everything a small MPV does except a higher driving position while delivering the benefit of car-like driving manners – something few MPVs can boast.

For a car where space is a priority, the 207 SW also looks chic with its raked rear pillar and aluminium roof rails complementing lines derived from one of the market's sharpest looking superminis.

And where Peugeot interiors sometimes failed to match the exterior, the 207 range marked a major change; the 207 SW's cabin is a genuinely pleasant environment, no doubt helped by the huge 'Cielo' full-length glass roof that comes as standard.

Plastics are attractive and durable; the neat gauges have chrome bezels on the higher grade Sport models and there is a lot of class alloy detail, although the centre display surround can reflect and distract from the view through the windscreen.

For a car competing with MPVs, interior stowage is also poor with small door pockets and a tiny glovebox – there is little room to stash CDs.

However, the boot is large for this class of car with a low loading threshold, while head and legroom for rear passengers is excellent – the cabin remains airy even with the electrically-powered roof blind in place.

You also quickly forget any minor grumbles when driving the 207SW: it has a lovely engine and gearbox and the car carries over the driver enjoyment of the main 207 hatchback range.

Grip is tenacious and the car keeps it poised on corners where a conventional high-set MPV would heel as if under sail.

If you enjoy driving, but have to yield to practicality for work, family, sport or canine reasons then this little load-lugging Peugeot offers more than a small MPV, without a loss of style or street cred.

FORD FOCUS ESTATE

NOT to be confused with the Focus C-Max MPV – another excellent alternative here – the standard estate offers that excellent Focus driving experience plus extra load lugging capacity. The Mark I estate is not as stylish as its replacement, but is the more practical and there is plenty of choice in the market; the arrival of the popular C-Max has made the Mark II estate a rarer item, but sought after second-hand for its neat and classy rear end styling.

PEUGEOT 206SW

HERE is an MPV for people who do not want a car that looks like an MPV. Peugeot has a recent tradition for developing SW models that are really blown up estates with the space and versatility to attack rival MPVs without the penalty of being unwieldy or ugly. The 206SW is affordable with all the handling panache of the 206 hatch – Peugeot's best-selling model ever – and can be bought with one of the French marque's enviable diesel engines.

CITROEN PICASSO

LINES sometimes described as 'jelly mould' have not stopped the Picasso from being the best-selling midi-MPV for much of its life – it stands out from the crowd and is airy and spacious inside. Refinement and ride are good, although the latter also makes the handling feel woolly on the corners. There is the extra bonus of smooth and frugal diesel options too and, with lots of new Picassos sold, used car hunters are spoilt for choice and price.

PUBLIC MEETING
SANDWICH NEIGHBOURHOOD FORUM
22ND MAY 2008, 6.30PM

THE PHOENIX CENTRE, SANDWICH

Do you live or work in the Sandwich area? Are you interested in finding out more about how climate change will affect your community and what you can do?

If so, please join Kent County Councillors, Dover District Councillors and Town and Parish Councillors of the Sandwich area at the forthcoming public Sandwich Neighbourhood Forum on the 22nd May. Come and hear what action KCC and DDC are taking to tackle climate change to both reduce carbon emissions and preparing to adapt to change. Learn what action you can take personally, what communities in Kent are already doing to become low carbon, and how you can get involved. You will then be given the opportunity to ask questions, share your own experience and ideas, and, if so inclined, begin to develop projects for your local community. Rosie Rechter, who has recently set up the 'Deal With It' campaign in Deal, will be available to offer advice on how she successfully got the campaign off the ground. You can also take a tour of the Phoenix Centre to see how an environmentally friendly building looks, feels and works in practice, a community project that has proved to be extremely popular with all who use it. For further information about the meeting please contact Louise Bolton, Community Liaison Manager on 01622 221947.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Play the field when looking for finance

APPROACHING your bank is not necessarily the best strategy when you need finance. It makes better sense to see what the whole market is offering before you make a decision on a key move.

CFS, and independent commercial finance broker, based in Dover and Maidstone, says businesses need to search for the right package with lending is not limited to the high street lenders.

The market continues to grow with new lenders providing new services, some only available through the intermediary market. Principals Marcus Abbott and Andrew Craddock, who between them have 50 years' experience as commercial bankers, say that businesses need to take expert advice.

Online health check on offer to firms

BOSSSES can now check the health of their businesses with the help of a free online guide. Business Link's health check tool, available at www.businesslink.gov.uk/southeast/healthcheck, can help companies analyse their finance and administration systems.

Business Link's Richard Green said: "Identifying and tackling any problems early on can markedly increase the chances of success. A few minutes online could be critical to the health and life of an organisation."

The rogues' gallery

ROGUE traders now have nowhere to hide. A new customer review directory launched this week highlights best practice and exposes the worst UK companies via customer feedback and credit ratings.

BView offers a web presence to every UK business, free credit ratings of more than 1.5 million companies and provides unbiased searches which enable the customer to decide how their results are returned.

There are 78,922 Kent companies with preloaded BView business profiles and businesses not on the site can join voluntarily. Visit www.bview.co.uk.

How business at Paddock Wood Hop Farm has been transformed

Protection from bad debts could save your firm

BAD debts are on the rise – with the number of judgments against businesses hitting a six-year high, latest figures show.

Independent commercial finance company IGF is urging small to medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) to consider bad-debt protection to hedge against the increase in bad business debts.

The problem was highlighted recently by the Registry Trust, a not-for-profit company which collects and distributes court judgment information in the public interest throughout the UK.

It said there was a marked increase in bad debt judgments against businesses in 2007. The rise of four per cent to 185,395 took the number of judgments to the highest level since 2001.

Malcolm Hurlston, the chairman of Registry Trust, said: "The next 12 months should be interesting."

"I certainly expect the upward trend in commercial judgments to continue in 2008 which promises to be a tough year for British businesses, especially in the small and medium-sized enterprise sector, against which most commercial judgments are made."

IGF, which is based at Kings Hill, West Malling, said it can, for example, offer a bad-debt protection facility to both factoring and invoice discounting clients' and will be worked out to the needs of individual businesses.

Businesses going for bad-debt protection can get protection for up to 90 per cent of any loss suffered by reason of the failure of a debtor to pay, owing to insolvency or just not paying.

IGF's managing director Tracy Ewen, said: "No one likes unforeseen bad debt, and for SMEs and start-ups, it could seriously jeopardise the survival of their businesses."

CASH FLOW: Managing director Tracy Ewen of Kings Hill-based IGF, which can offer bad-debt protection

"Nothing is more frustrating than running into difficulties with cash flow through no fault of your own. With proper protection, if a customer does fail to pay through insolvency or protracted default, the outstanding debts will be settled."

IGF is an independently managed commercial finance company specialising in the small and medium-sized business market, especially companies from new start-up to £10 million turnover a year.

Part of the Greater London Enterprise Group of Companies, an economic development and investment company owned by the London Boroughs, IGF was established in 1997. For more information go to www.igf-group.com.

DECISIVE: Yasir Arafat bowled Kent to victory against the Essex Eagles

Eagles plucked by Arafat spell

CRICKET

A SUPERB opening spell from Yasir Arafat helped Kent Spitfires comfortably beat Essex Eagles at Chelmsford on Friday for their fourth successive win in the Friends Provident Trophy.

The Pakistan all-rounder took 4-29 to rip through the hosts' top order. Essex, who set a club record 391-5 in their previous game against Surrey, never recovered and stumbled to 124 all out in the 26th over.

Earlier, South African all-rounder Justin Kemp continued his good form with a half century. Kent batted patiently on a difficult wicket to reach 230-7 from their allocation.

The 106-run victory, their fifth successive triumph in all competitions, sent Rob Key's men top of the Tredwell and Arafat combined for a quick partnership in the closing overs.

In reply, the Eagles stuttered almost immediately as Arafat dismissed the dangerous Mark Pettini, who smashed 144 at The Oval five days earlier, for just one run.

Ravi Bopara, who scored 99 against Kent in the first game of the competition, then fell first ball to Arafat as Essex were reduced to 9-2.

After a flurry of boundaries from Jason Gallian, the Spitfires struck the decisive blow. Five wickets fell for 26 runs to leave the Eagles in deep trouble on 61-7.

Some resistance followed but it fell well short of the miracle Essex needed to pull off an unlikely win.

Malvern too sharp for Boars Head B

THE Malvern won the battle at the top of Division One in the Dover Invitation Darts League with a steady 6-3 win over Boars Head B.

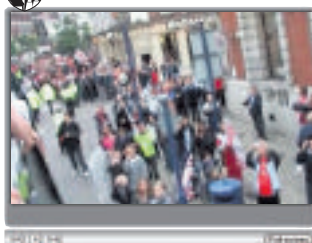

The Malvern were leading 2-1 after the pairs and then raced to a 5-1 lead, with wins from Peter "Tucker" Fry, Mark Clayton and Dennis Painter.

Keith Waymark made the score 6-1 before Lee Ware and Paul Turner won the final two games to make the score-line respectable.

The Archers' recent downturn in form continued as they lost against the Seamen's Mission 5-4. It was the Mission's second win of the season, just one week after being thumped 9-0.

EBBSFLEET fans line the streets to welcome home their Wembley heroes

Spanton and Snell keep target low

A FIVE-WICKET haul for Craig Spanton helped restrict Beckenham to just 112 runs as Sandwich secured a win by 82 runs.

Beckenham asked Sandwich to bat first and managed to bowl them out for just 194 runs, with Craig Snell top scoring with 64 before he was bowled by Johan Malcolm.

However, an accurate bowling display helped Sandwich secure the win as Spanton and Snell took nine wickets between them. The only resistance was James Goodman, who made 44 runs before falling to the bowling of Snell.

Stevens' quickfire ton sees off Brown Caps

CRICKET

BY DAVID PRITCHARD

KENT Spitfires moved a step closer to the quarter-finals of the Friends Provident Trophy after a nail-biting 17-run victory over the Surrey Brown Caps.

Short boundaries at the St Lawrence Ground made for a high-scoring game in which more than 650 runs were racked up.

Mark Butcher's highest one-day score was not enough for Surrey as Kent's bowlers held their nerve with some disciplined bowling at the death to win a thriller at Canterbury on Sunday.

The former England batsman struck a brisk 139 to set Surrey up for a memorable victory, but Azhar Mahmood took four late wickets to hand Kent victory.

Earlier, Martin van Jaarsveld and Darren Stevens hit centuries in a partnership of 216 to give the Spitfires hope of a fifth successive win in the competition.

A flat wicket and benign conditions made the game a batsman's paradise in which bowlers had to work hard for their wickets.

Surrey won the toss and opted to field, but could not find a breakthrough under the early cloud cover. Openers Rob Key and Joe Denly batted well before the former flicked Chris Jordan's first delivery to Mark Ramprakash midway to the boundary.

Denly looked set for a half century but lost his middle stump to Jordan on 46.

The bowler took his third wicket when South African Justin Kemp went for six to leave Kent on 121-3.

The all-rounder's departure brought van Jaarsveld and Stevens together and the pair worked well to keep the score ticking over.

With the overs running out and seven wickets still in hand, Stevens took the initiative to accelerate the scoring.

Ablly supported by van Jaarsveld, he put on 147 from the last 12 overs. Stevens' century came from just 67 balls and van Jaarsveld scored his runs from 108 balls.

Stevens finished unbeaten on 119, while van Jaarsveld hit 113.

The Brown Caps needed almost seven runs an over in their reply, but Butcher kept the scoring rate going with some fluent strokes.

Boosted by an attacking Usman Afzaal,

Picture: ADY KERRY

BACK TO BASICS: Darren Stevens made a welcome return to form with an unbeaten century against the Brown Caps

Surrey needed 48 off the last seven overs to win, with seven wickets remaining.

But as the game appeared to be slipping away from the Spitfires, all-rounder Ryan McLaren removed Butcher.

Mahmood and Yasir Arafat were then brought into the attack and took the last six wickets in the final five overs to turn the tide in Kent's favour.

The Spitfires' fifth successive win in the competition almost guarantees them a place in the quarter-finals. They can make sure by avoiding defeat against Middlesex on Monday.

Kent play Somerset today in the first day of Tunbridge Wells cricket week. Rob Key's side take on a Somerset team led by Australian Justin Langer, looking to progress in the county championship.

Patience could be key for new signings

FOOTBALL

BY DAVID PRITCHARD

FOLKESTONE Invicta boss Neil Cugley is hoping to announce which players are staying at the club for next season following talks with the squad.

The club suffered a traumatic relegation from the Ryman Premier on the last day of the season last month and two experienced players have already left.

Although no other players have gone so far, Cugley believes more will follow Roland Edge and Kevin Watson out of Cheriton Road.

He said: "I think a few more will go. I don't think it's just the relegation, sometimes players like to say they are leaving for this or that reason but most of the time it's financial and fair play to them.

"There has been some interest from other clubs but some have re-signed and want to be a part of what we want to build here. Although we have had the disappointment of relegation, there is a confidence about the club that we can get back up a division."

Talks have begun with players about joining the club, but they are still at an early stage.

While Cugley appreciated the lack of news could be frustrating for fans, he felt it was in the club's interests to take their time.

He said: "We don't want to be rushed into signing the wrong ones or sign players before the best ones become available."

IN TALKS: Invicta boss Neil Cugley believes more players will follow Roland Edge and Kevin Watson out of the club

"One of the best sides I had was five years ago and we signed four players on the Thursday before the start of the season. We would all love to get it sorted early but it can be worth being patient."

Invicta will again host Gillingham in a pre-season friendly, with Mark Stimson's side coming down to Cheriton Road on Saturday, July 26.

Leigh Bremner scored for Invicta in last year's match, but the League One club won 2-1.

Fisk is happy to play the waiting game

FOOTBALL

STAR striker Buster Smisen has pledged his future to Hythe Town as manager Paul Fisk hopes to keep the majority of his side together for next season.

Smisen bagged an astonishing 42 league goals to fire Hythe to a fourth place finish in the Kent Premier League.

With his strike rate, fans may have feared he would move on but Fisk confirmed he expected the forward to be in his team for next season.

He said: "Buster will definitely be staying, which is great news. I have spoken to all of the players now and the majority are going to be staying."

"We have got a couple we are not going to be able to afford to keep who probably think they have done a bit better than they have done, which is a bit disappointing."

Hythe exceeded expectations this season as they challenged for the title and reached the Kent Premier Division Cup final.

Financial limitations at the club will prevent Fisk making any eye-catching signings and he is expecting to have to wait until later in the summer before he can bring any players in.

FUTURE: Hythe manager Paul Fisk is looking to keep his squad together

He said: "When training starts a lot of players go to bigger clubs and once they don't get in they look elsewhere."

"It's not ideal but last season we picked up Tom Adlington after he didn't get into Ashford and James Gregory and Buster Smisen who tried to get into Sittingbourne."

"We have already got a good side so waiting is not so bad, it's just the way things are."

Chairman and coach honoured for services

RUGBY

DOVER Rugby Club chairman Richard Catt and coach Graham Tonks received civic awards from Dover Town council in recognition for their services to sport.

The rise of the Sharks has been one of the stories of Kent rugby this season.

They secured back-to-back promotions with a squad of players from the Dover area, who have been playing together since the age of nine.

By gaining promotion to London 2 South through the play-offs this season, it was the club's fifth promotion in six years.

The club has been built on a strong youth set-up which has been recognised by the Dover Town Council culminating in the awards for Tonks and Catt.

Catt said: "I am delighted to receive the award. It was a great night and it was nice to meet all the other people who are doing great things for this town."

However, work has already begun for the sides first season in London 2 South and the players have only two weeks of rest before training begins.

SUCCESS: Dover rugby preparing for the new season

He added: "We have already sent our squad list to the Kent RFU for this season and the following season which shows our intentions for the years to come."

"There is a lot of work that is going on behind the scenes and the players will begin training soon."

"We are all looking forward to when the season begins again."

SPORT IN BRIEF

ON THE LASH: Not everyone was stopped by the rain

Sibton claim win over near rivals

SIBTON Park secured their first win of the Kent League Division One season with all-rounder Andy Allon top scoring with the bat and grabbing two wickets.

The rain, which cancelled many games in the county, held off for a closely fought match between neighbours Sibton Park and Folkestone. After a defeat in their first game of the season against Bexley, Sibton Park were looking to secure their first win. Folkestone were looking to improve on their win against Whitstable last week.

Folkestone batted first and they didn't get off to the best of starts, as Luke Samarasinghe was bowled by Chris Heath after scoring just a single run. Heath struck again shortly after by taking Niall O'Brien's wicket for 14 runs.

Folkestone stemmed the tide with an impressive performance from Indian batsman Himanshu Waingankar, who secured a half century before being run out. Left handed batsmen Craig Coleman followed shortly, LBW.

Sher Khanagha was next, looking to hit his second consecutive half century, but fell seven runs short as Heath struck again. Daniel Clark hit 31 runs before he was caught by Sam Newman off the bowling of Christopher Spring and the tail could only put on 28 in the allotted 50 overs, leaving them with a total of 202.

Sibton began their run chase slowly, as opener George Leadbetter was bowled by Andy Bray after scoring one run. However, it was Allon who impressed with the bat and fell just 16 runs short from claiming a century, falling to the bowling of Coleman. Steve Hobbs didn't last long at the crease, as Khanagha bowled him for seven runs.

Spring, who had already taken three wickets with the ball, showed he is just as good with the bat, with a solid 34 helping Sibton cut the deficit. A partnership of 22 between Jamie Keeler and Chris Heath secured a three wicket win, as Sibton passed the total set by Folkestone with four overs to spare for their first win of the season.
